OLAVO CHINAGLIA

PARTNER

Olavo Chinaglia is a former commissioner and interim president of CADE, the Brazilian Antitrust Agency. In these roles, he analyzed a substantial number of cases concerning merger control and anticompetitive behavior in various industries, including telecommunications, electricity, oil and gas, retail markets, food processing, internet and IT, and civil aviation. As CADE's interim president, he coordinated the implementation of the new Brazilian competition statute (Law 12.526/2011). This endeavor included the consolidation of legal powers previously distributed among three entities into one single structure, the establishment of a pre-merger notification system and a thorough revision of CADE's internal rules and regulations.

During his mandate, Mr. Chinaglia coordinated CADE's Technical Group of Studies on Regulated Markets, as well as representation of the agency before the International Competition Network (ICN) and the Competition Committee of the OECD. He also chaired the Organization Commission for the 11th ICN Annual Conference, which took place in April 2012 in Rio de Janeiro.

Prior to being appointed a CADE commissioner in August 2008, Mr. Chinaglia worked in full-service law firms and antitrust boutiques, accumulating outstanding experiences in landmark cases.

Mr. Chinaglia concurrently engages in academic activities. He has taught commercial and economic law for over five years in prestigious private law schools in São Paulo and attended, either as speaker or moderator, over seventy scientific conferences worldwide. He has also published over a dozen papers and articles, including his PhD dissertation on the destination of intangible assets and goodwill in cases of corporate withdrawal.
